Fill in the shapes with a pencil and

_____	_____	_____

Life in the trenches during World War I was hard. With the enemy close by, soldiers would spend days on end living in the trenches. Most of the action in a trench took place between dusk and dawn. Daytime was often spent passing time — from reading or writing letters home to playing games.

THE TRENCHES

There were millions of rats that lived with the soldiers in the trenches, causing many problems. Some soldiers said the rats had a sixth sense about when firing would begin. They made themselves scarce just before it happened!

List the items you see in the trenches when you look through the peepholes.

DOG FIGHT

The term dogfight, which means aerial combat between two or more aircraft, came from World War I. The War started not long after the airplane was invented and the technologies of the airplanes evolved to meet the needs of the countries fighting. At first, planes were used for reconnaissance (scouting)—helping direct ground troops by looking down on the enemy.

What color would your airplane be?

BY THE END, AERIAL BOMBING HAD A MAJOR IMPACT ON THE OUTCOME OF THE WAR.

One of the biggest challenges was mounting a machine gun onto a plane so it could fire through the propeller.

Airplane squadrons had animal mascots. This British Air Services mascot was a fox. The pilots said that this fox loved to fly!
.....

Are you dizzy yet?

DELIVER THE MESSAGE

Navigate through the maze to deliver the important message to General Pershing's headquarters!

QUICK! IT'S IMPORTANT!

World War I was the first time that motorcycles were used in combat service on a large scale.

Harley-Davidson provided around 15,000 for military use during the War.

READY
SET
GO!

Can you guess who is riding this motorcycle in this 1922 picture? T.E. Lawrence... better known as Lawrence of Arabia. He played a significant role in helping the Arabs fight the Turks during World War I.

During the War, each side needed to keep information secret from their enemies which forced everyone to come up with newer and tougher codes. One U.S. Army officer realized that a Native American language might be too difficult for the Germans to decipher. Many credit Choctaw Indians from Oklahoma, who began using their native language over telephones at the Battle of the Meuse-Argonne, in deceiving the Germans.

WOMEN IN WAR

30,000
WERE THERE

Not until 1901 did the Army and Navy Nurse Corps allow women to serve. Even then, only a few women were selected. It was not until the United States entered World War I that the government realized the need for using women in the War effort. All women were called upon to serve in any capacity. Women not able to go overseas found many ways to help on the homefront.

Did you know women were still fighting for the right to vote during this time?

Hold up your end!
